GENERAL MAP OF THE ROUTE

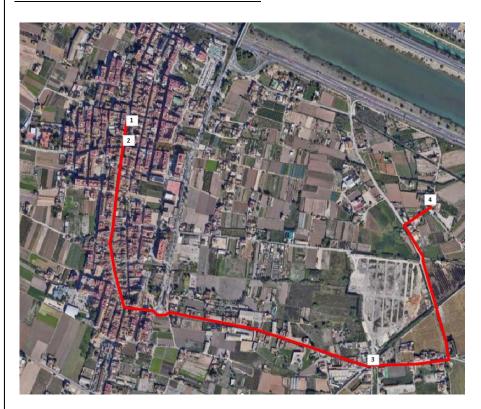

LOCATION OF THE TOURIST ATTRACTION

HISTORY

The Tremolar neighborhood is currently divided between two municipalities, with part belonging to Alfafar and the other to València.

Its location is enviable, situated in the heart of the Albufera Natural Park and surrounded by canals, irrigation channels, and rice fields, which contribute to its high biodiversity typical of wetlands, featuring aquatic birds and some endemic fish species of the Valencian Community (photos 1 and 2).

The canals in this area hold significant historical value for the city of València, serving as connections between different urban centers and La Albufera (photos 3 and 4).

Among them, the Canal del Tremolar was crucial, housing the well-known Puerto del Tremolar, from where the "Ravatxol" boat used to make its daily journey transporting supplies, goods, and passengers to El Palmar.

Traditionally, the area's economy has been based on agriculture, particularly rice cultivation. Evidence of this includes the three threshing mills that existed around Puerto del Tremolar, of which two, Caguetes and Pasiegos, can still be seen.

Every June, the neighborhood celebrates festivities dedicated to Mare de Déu dels Desamparats. During these celebrations, residents welcome the Virgin, who arrives via the Canal del Tremolar, accompanied by albaes sung to the rhythm of tabales and dulzainas, and traditional Valencian dances are performed (photos 6, 7, and 8).

GENERAL INFORMATION

Address: Camino del Tremolar

ACCESIBILITY

Access: Much of the area lacks sidewalks and is accessed via rural paths.

Parking: There are no parking spaces for people with reduced mobility in the area.

PHOTO 1. Group of farmers in a rice cultivation marsh around 1960.

PHOTO 2. Rice field today in the El Tremolar neighborhood

PHOTO 3 and 4. Irrigation canals in the El Tremolar neighborhood

PHOTO 5, 6 and 7. The festivities of El Tremolar (photos: https://www.elperiodicodeaqui.com/)